Aercine features the Michael J. Steven's Trio with Herb Robertson and Mark Feldman's first recording together. Resting comfortably between the dense precise aesthetics of Béla Bartók and the swinging easy open strides of Stéphane Grappelli, the music on Aercine is further evidence that jazz is truly a trans-idiomatic music.

"It's rare to find an album as compelling as this one, and it's even more remarkable when all of the music on the disk is completely improvised." – Farrell Lowe, All About Jazz

"Stunning technique, a never hiding sense of beauty." – Massimo Ricci (Italy)

"Overall, this is a very spirited performance by a bunch of very talented free jazz performers. What more could you want?" – Indieville
